I used the method `gsub(pattern, "", replacement)` but it doesn't work. I'm in RStudio in a.RMD file. How can I replace the strings like? Bonus: If I have the message? you need password? with "password" I would like to replace it with "passw0rd".

A: You can use `sub()` to remove the substrings from the string. If you want to remove the string "Solucionario " you can use `sub()` with the string " Solucionario " and in `sub()` you can use some regular expression like `sub("Solucionario [^ ]+", "", "Solucionario")` where `[^ ]` means any non-newline character. If you want to remove only the string Solucionario the regular expression can be `sub("Solucionario [^ ]+", "", "Solucionario")`

The New Saudi Vision for the Region: Riyadh's Blueprint for Global Economic Reorganization, 2007-2019 The New Saudi Vision for the Region: Riyadh's Blueprint for Global Economic Reorganization, 2007-2019 () was a document published by the Saudi Ministry of Finance on October 30, 2007, that set out the kingdom's vision for the Middle East and North Africa in the coming decades. The document called for "a new economic relationship between the Arab world and the world beyond it", maintaining that "the changes imposed on the world economy (since the 1940s) have made it necessary that the Arab states undertake new measures of economic reform".

reference? In the following code, b has a "ref". And var b2 = b as WeakReference. I know that the outcome will be equal to the reference it had before. I guess there are at least five ways to cast. What are all of them? In particular, how to cast weakly? And, how to cast it explicitly?
