An in vitro murine model of the pathogenesis of infection with a recently isolated, rapidly growing Clostridium novyi type II strain was evaluated with a multidrug regimen of clindamycin. Sub-inhibitory concentrations of clindamycin were chosen to simulate the clinically relevant situation of a possibly postantibiotic effect (PAE) being clinically relevant in a suppurative infection. Experiments were performed both in the absence and presence of prophylactic therapy with polymyxin B. During a 2-h infection,
